U. S. Self-Ration Called Peace Key

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Truman's drive for American self-rationing to head off starvation in Europe went into high gear today amid hints that the Administration may take more drastic action if necessary.

Leon Henderson, war-time boss of prices and rationing, denounced the President's "buy wisely, eat sensibly, waste nothing" program as one which "falls tragically short of the demands of a world crisis." He asked that Congress be convened and food rationing resumed quickly.

And Commerce Sec. Harriman indicated that rationing and price controls are not yet out of the picture.

He told the Citizens Food Committee at its first meeting that the saving of 100,000,000 bushels of grain asked by Mr. Truman may be too little for western Europe's needs.

"I think you will find," Harriman said, "that something like 70,000,000 bushels more than that is really required to do an adequate job."

The Presidential Committee on aid for Europe, which the Commerce Secretary heads, decided not to recommend rationing or price control, Harriman said, because action "must be taken now—today" and cannot wait on creation of the "necessary" control mechanisms. He added:

"That doesn't mean, of course, that consideration should not be given currently to what controls might be established, with the authority of Congress."

President Truman and State Sec. Marshall will broadcast a nationwide appeal on the four major networks at 10:30 p. m. Boston time, Sunday. This will open what Luckman, at a news conference, described as an all-media campaign—including newspapers, billboards, radio, movies and magazines—to spread these slogans over the land:

"Buy wisely, eat sensibly, waste nothing"—especially grain, meat, eggs and poultry; and "don't start the next war in your garbage can."

There were no meatless Mondays or eggless Wednesdays in the Luckman program, and he emphasized that Americans are not supposed to eat less but to buy less scarce foods, more plentiful foods and waste no food at all.

"The arsenal of democracy," he said, "must now become the granary of the world, or we shall bury our hopes for peace with those who died to preserve it."

For housewives he laid down simple rules:

- 1.—Buy the cheaper cuts.
- 2.—Don't serve too much—and don't urge people to take seconds.
- 3.—Don't overcook meat, because that shrinks it.
- 4.—Use leftovers.
- 5.—Save wheat in every possible way—particularly by going easy on poultry and dairy products because it takes grain to feed chickens and cows.

Reds Building Rock Houses in Siberia Cliffs

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 2 (AP)—Reports Russia is building "rock houses" in the cliffs lining the shores of Siberia opposite St. Lawrence island have been received from Siberian natives visiting the American island, the Rev. E. R. Parker, Presbyterian missionary on the island, said today.

The missionary, now en route to the United States, told the Anchorage Times the information came to him from island Eskimos after a party of 20 Siberian natives visited St. Lawrence this summer.

"The visitors didn't know much about the activity at Indian Point on Chukotski peninsula (approximately 50 miles across the Bering sea from St. Lawrence island) but said the Russians are using large quantities of dynamite to blast out houses in the rock cliffs," the missionary reported.

British Seize 2 Jewish Ships

JERUSALEM, Oct. 2 (INS)—British naval boarding parties took over two unauthorized Jewish immigrant ships off the coast of Palestine today and both vessels were promptly directed toward the port of Haifa.

Although one of the would-be blockade-runners had radioed it was encircled by seven British ships but would "fight," an announcement indicated the naval forces had little trouble.

First of the two ships intercepted was the Northlands, which was boarded "without opposition," forty-five minutes later, a boarding party mounted to the deck of the Paducah and met what was unofficially described as "slight" opposition.

filed the bills, Rudsten pointed out that men and women have committed suicide or gone insane when faced with eviction and no prospect of a home.

Store, Sports Chief C. F. Adams Dies

Charles F. Adams, 70, one of Boston's foremost business men and sports leaders, died at midnight at Phillips House of a complication of ailments. A native of New Hampshire, he was the founder of the First National grocery store chain and with his tremendous wealth made his influence felt in virtually every form of professional sport in Boston.

Because of the exact similarity of their names, he often was confused with Charles Francis Adams, Boston banker, famed yachtsman and Secretary of the Navy in the cabinet of President Hoover. They were not related.

He was a moving figure in the establishment of Suffolk Downs. A major shareholder in the Boston Braves, he put his fortune at the team's disposal when financial difficulties made it likely that the National League would remove the franchise from Boston.

His foresight resulted in the building of Boston Arena and later he won his fight for the construction of the Boston Garden.

BUYS HOCKEY LEAGUE

This latter interest developed from his conviction that professional hockey would be welcomed by Boston fandom. So sure was he of this conviction that he once purchased an entire Western Canadian hockey league to obtain sufficient players to staff the Boston Bruins team in the National Hockey League.

One of the dividends of that move was the fabulous "Eddie" Shore, whose name is linked inseparably with that of C. F. Adams in the establishment of the Bruins' hockey empire. He welcomed professional football to Boston in 1932 when George P. Marshall started his Redskins team and found the facilities of Braves Field thrown open to him.

DISPOSES OF HOLDINGS

But failing health in recent years had caused him to dispose of all his vast holdings in both business and sports.

He spent most of his time in vacationing at his summer home in Maine on a fishing trip last week when he was stricken critically ill with a stomach ailment. He was flown to Boston and immediately entered the Phillips

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lillian Woolard Adams, and their only son, Weston W. Adams.

Private funeral services will be held tomorrow at Waterman Funeral Chapel with the Rev. John Ogden Fisher, pastor of the Framingham Unitarian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Edgell Grove Cemetery, Framingham.

His amazing career began Oct. 19, 1876 when he was born to Frank W. and Elizabeth Benoit Adams in Newport, Vt.

He was one of four children, but only one, A. Verne Adams of Arlington, now survives.

STARTS BUSINESS CAREER
He was educated in Vermont schools and Jenney's Business College in Enosburg, Vt.

Lynn Woman Vanishes on Way to Show

Miss Ruth Chaffee, 33, Humphrey st., Swampscott, an attractive dark-haired Sunday school teacher and employee of the Lynn office of the telephone company, dropped suddenly from sight a few minutes before she was to meet her mother at a downtown Lynn theater yesterday afternoon, Lynn police revealed today.

Lynn Chief Insp. Charles T. Duggan reported he was "deeply concerned" over her disappearance because of her excellent character and reputation.

Miss Chaffee was reported missing by her mother, Mrs. Elsie Chaffee, with whom she shares a room at the Wiley House, Swampscott.

The missing woman was last seen at 5:10 p. m. yesterday walking directly across City Hall sq. She had just left her work at the telephone company office. Louise N. Hosman of Goldsmith ave., Beverly, told police she was standing in the telephone company building doorway and that she exchanged greetings with Ruth and watched her cross the square.

By telephone in midafternoon, Ruth had arranged to meet her mother in front of the Paramount Theater, Lynn, at 5:15 p. m. She never arrived there.

IN EXCELLENT SPIRITS

Ruth, an employee of the telephone company in Lynn for 14 years, left home as usual for work yesterday at 8:30 a. m. Her mother, a telephone switchboard operator at Lynn Hospital, had the afternoon off. At 2:30 p. m. Ruth telephoned her sister, Mrs. Esther Andrews of Eutaw ave., Lynn, to say she would meet her mother at the theater at 5:15.

Neither her mother nor sister heard from Ruth again. A co-worker at the telephone company reported to police she saw Miss Chaffee, in excellent spirits, getting ready to leave work at about 5 o'clock.

"Ruth was always prompt and considerate in her appointments," her sister, Mrs. Andrews said. "Her failure to keep the appointment with mother after suggesting it and making it indicates something happened to her."

ROBBERY DISCOUNTED

Her mother and friends reported Ruth had been in excellent spirits lately. She had been spending her evenings playing cribbage with relatives, and appeared very happy.

Although yesterday was her pay day, police discounted a theory that she might have been the victim of a robber. They said she was not carrying a large sum of money.

Friends of the missing woman reported she was devoted to her mother and had an unblemished reputation. She had no boy friends, they said, and did not smoke or drink.

A native of Lynn and a 1932 graduate of Lynn English High School, where she was active in dramatics, Miss Chaffee was a Sunday school teacher at the Maple st., Lynn, Methodist Church.

She entered the employee of the telephone company at Lynn in 1933 and after serving as a telephone operator became a member of the traffic department there.

TELEPHONED SISTER
Kenneth E. Pickard, manager of the telephone company office in City Hall sq., reported it had definitely been established that Ruth remained at the office until 5 p. m. yesterday. A check also

Missing Worcester Boy Found in Leicester Home

WORCESTER, Oct. 2 (AP)—The mystery of the disappearance of Frederick LaFlash, 7, of Southbridge st., was solved early this morning when Rev John J. McCarthy of Sacred Heart Church in Worcester revealed that the child had been taken to the Nazareth Home in Leicester by a "charitable person." The home is run by the Sisters of Mercy.

According to Fr. McCarthy, the child, reported missing since Monday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar LaFlash, had run away from home after being punished by his parents. The child was taken in by a woman whose name Fr. McCarthy did not reveal. The woman notified church authorities, and the child was taken to the Nazareth home.

The child's father told Worcester police he became alarmed late Monday when he received a phone call from a woman who said:

"Frederick will not be home tonight."

The child, one of eight children, had left home at 6:30 p. m. on that day to play with a brother. The brother returned home alone.

'Good Boy' Killer of Woman

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—A "very good boy" in the eyes of his parents was held for questioning about unsolved crimes today after police said he signed a statement that he stabbed a minister's wife in an attempted robbery Sept. 24.

He is 15-year-old James Hartman, a plump, tawny-haired vocational school pupil whom Police Capt. Patrick Collins said also told of slashing and robbing a young mother in the same South Side neighborhood where the stabbing took place.

"I believe he is guilty of other crimes," the captain said. "It's highly illogical that this lad would commit two crimes against women in a week and not be involved in others."

MRS. GRACELYN BUSH, 32

Collins said he would recommend a lie detector test after the boy had been interrogated by the State attorney's staff. Two policemen guarded him as he slept in the juvenile detention home after making his statement.

He had been seized for questioning in the attack Tuesday night on Mrs. Mary Clausen, 23, mother of two small children. After she identified Hartmann last night, two of her brothers beat him before police separated them.

Collins said after young Hartmann finished a statement relating to the attack on Mrs. Clausen, he was questioned about the slaying of Mrs. Gracelyn Bush, 32, wife of a minister, in a busy South Side parking lot.

"Yes, I killed her," Collins quoted Hartmann as saying. "But I didn't mean to kill her. I didn't know the knife was open. She came toward me and screamed. I hit her. Then she fell. I ran away."

Holy Name Hears Apostolic Envoy Warning on Atheism

Holy Name Society members, reminded that Jesus himself chose to be a working man, were urged by Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the U. S., today to promote social justice and work for restoration of a sound, economic life in the nation.

Presiding at a solemn pontifical mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, which marked the formal opening of the Holy Name Society convention, Abp. Cicognani conveyed the Papal blessing to the delegates and warned them that "atheism takes advantage of social and economic disorders."

At the same mass Most Rev. William P. O'Connor of Madison, Wis., in a sermon decried millions of Americans who have no God—"millions who blindly follow a thousand blind leaders."

Abp. Cicognani told the delegates in his brief address they must improve religious culture and sanctify Sunday.

"You are either professional men or workers," he said. "You must all work together to restore our economic life to a sound basis."

"Atheism takes advantage of economic and social disorders to preach class struggle and abolish the rights of man."

"From God derive the inviolable rights of man and from God stem the justice, charity and peace on which capital and labor must operate in true partnership."

In urging Catholics to greater Christian good, Bishop O'Connor said in part:

"We cannot evade the appalling realization that at no period has revolt from Christ been so acutely preached and so audaciously organized as in these days in which we live. 'Millions of our fellow Americans have no belief in a personal God, in Jesus Christ and in the immortality of the human soul.'"

"Other millions are blindly following a thousand blind leaders who brazenly propound their own bizarre interpretations of the Christian Gospel, as a substitute for the word of God as taught by the Church."

"It is so easy and natural for us to go along with the tide of life around us that we seldom pause to ask ourselves: 'Is this the kind of life a Christian man should lead?'"

"Too often we do not have the courage to stand up for our convictions when it means going against the current or local popular opinion. Ours is a sacred and holy task to go forth among others and reveal the riches of our Catholic faith."

TRUMAN MESSAGE

Earlier, Archbishop Cushing officiated at a Boston Common meeting at which President Truman sent a message urging members of the organization to carry on their noble work.

The Archbishop, introduced by William E. Hale, president of the Boston Archdiocese Holy Name Society, stressed the necessity of stirring the minds of all men to thoughts of Eternity and Almighty God.

"We are living in an age in which religion is being bypassed in both public and private lives. This is the beginning of secularism," he said.

URGE RED BAN

Earlier it was announced that resolutions urging the Russians be banned from the United States as a result of the recent Soviet action in barring 12 U. S. Senators from visiting the U. S. Embassy in Moscow, and condemning Russia's present international policies, would be introduced at the convention.

In another resolution, proposals in several states to legalize so-called merry killings were vigorously condemned and euthanasia itself branded a barbaric crime.

Those who will be awarded the Vercelli medal are: Paul M. Brennan, New York; Patrick M. Kennedy, of Toronto, Canada; Joseph Scott, Los Angeles attorney; William G. At the Arena meeting, addresses will be given by several nationally-known speakers led by Abp. Cushing.

Word was received at headquarters yesterday that at least 1000 New York city police officers will arrive here at 10:35 Sunday morning and march to the Cathedral for the 11:30 mass. They will later march in the parade Sunday in which 100,000 members of the society will take part.

Temporary altars are being erected at North and South Stations where masses will be celebrated for paraders from distant parts of the State who will have to leave home before the times of their regular masses.

Cities, Towns Join in Protest Over Boost in Car Risk Rates

Mayors of Greater Boston cities joined with selectmen of nearly every town in the State today in a vigorous protest over higher compulsory automobile insurance rates scheduled for next year.

The higher premiums, ranging from 70 cents to $8.50 additional, will mean an extra $1,000,000 taken from Bay State drivers next year. Rates in effect this year were about $1,000,000 more expensive than the 1946 rates.

The Greater Boston mayors renewed their demands for a uniform "insurance rate for all Bay State cars. These towns grouped in Territory 16 will be charged the minimum premium of $16.50 next year, while drivers in Chelsea will pay $61.80, they pointed out.

Meetings are being arranged in several cities and towns in preparation for a heated protest at the public hearing on the new rates to be held at 10 a. m. Oct. 15 in the State Public Works Auditorium at 100 Nashua st.

CHELSEA PROTEST RALLY

Chelsea drivers were first to voice protests at a meeting at the local high school sponsored by the Massachusetts Automobile Ass'n. State Rep. Alexander F. Sullivan of East Boston was the principal speaker.

Bernard J. Riley of Chelsea, Suffolk County commander of the United American Veterans, called on Gov. Bradford to investigate the rate situation throughout the state and, if necessary, remove State Insurance Commr. Charles F. J. Harrington.

Riley charged that Chelsea and its citizens, many of them veterans, were being discriminated against by the high rates.

Mayor Bernard L. Sullivan called a conference with Chelsea Chamber of Commerce officials to discuss means to relieve the situation.

REVERE ASKS PROBE

In Revere, Rep. Peter J. Jordan said he would seek a legislative investigation of the high rate in his city.

Mayor Hynes directed the Boston law dept. to look into legal aspects of the boost from $50.30 to $52.30 for autos garaged in the city.

He continued: "It seems to me that the present system of fixing automobile insurance rates is grossly unfair to a city such as Boston and should be changed to a more equitable method."

"In all justice the rate should be uniform for the entire state, and the Legislature should correct the situation at its next session."

"It may or may not be that the increase can be justified under the present unfair method of computing the insurance rates. The solution, of course, lies in changing the system of computation."

REVERE UP $8.50

Similar sentiment was growing in Chelsea, where rates went up from $39.40 to $61.80, and the city remained alone in the highest bracket; Revere, which jumped from $50.30 to $58.80 and went into a separate classification just below Chelsea; and Everett and Somerville, just behind Boston in a fourth grouping with rates going up from $44 to $45.80.

The scheduled rates for 1948, while still only tentative, are expected to become the lawful rates with few minor changes, if any.

In Saugus, where the boost was $5.80 to $40.80, Speaker of the House Frederick B. Willis declared he would go to the hearing Oct. 15 and demand an explanation from the State insurance department. He, too, favored a single rate applicable to all cars.

In the name of the Randolph board of selectmen, John T. Hanlon, chairman, issued a vigorous statement of objection and promised to consult Police Chief Patrick T. McDonnell on the number of Randolph auto accidents.

Only communities where rates were cut were Braintree and Medway, down from $9.20 to $8.30; Stow, from $18.10 to $16.90; and West Springfield and Carlisle, from $27.20 to $25.20.

Pope Receives AL Officials, Urges Peace

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today received 44 American Legion officials who came to Europe following the Legion's national convention in New York, and told them they had "power for great good" and urged them to "use it well."

The audience, at the Pope's summer palace at Castel Gandolfo, lasted about half an hour. Participants said the pontiff talked individually with each of the men and their wives.

The Pope's address was delivered in English. He said:

"The best wish, the most sincere and generous we can offer you, gentlemen, is that your Legion may never increase by recruits from another war."

"There is a grim bond uniting your members, forged in the unspeakable horrors of war, strengthened and purified by memories of heroism, unselfishness, affection and devotion. But with wars over, another bond—yet it is not altogether another—holds you united, and your patriotism now in the fields of peace is no less active for the defense of your country."

"You have power for great good. Use it well. Help your youth; help them to grow up responsible citizens with a salutary fear of God in their hearts, in their minds and conduct, with a reverence for law, morality and religion."

"Help them to grasp and acknowledge the truth that any life worth of their manhood and their high destiny calls for and deserves toil and self-discipline."

"God grant that their world of tomorrow may be one of more universal social justice and more stable international peace."

"With paternal affection we pray God's blessing on you and on all those who are near and dear to you."

5-Minute Verdict Convicts Wysocki Of Attacking Girl

LAWRENCE, Oct. 2.—An Essex County Superior Court jury took only five minutes to convict Richard Z. Wysocki, 21-year-old Salem resident to rape Miss Mary H. Olney, 22, ex-WAVE, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Austin L. Olney of the University of New Hampshire.

Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau immediately sentenced Wysocki to 20 to 25 years in State Prison and filed seven other charges to which he had pleaded guilty yesterday, including armed robbery, escape, assault with intent to rob and larceny of an auto.

Wysocki denied the rape intent charge, but calmly admitted from the witness stand yesterday that he had beaten and strangled the girl in Forest River Park, Salem, the night of June 23, and had smashed her head repeatedly against a rock.

Miss Olney told the jury she had been dragged from an auto while conversing with Karl Kirchner, N. Y., an M. I. T. student, who was also strangled, and then had successfully beaten off Wysocki's advances until police arrived.

GIRL'S INJURIES

As a result of the beating, Miss Olney suffered a broken arm, hemorrhages of both eyes and two broken eardrums.

Wysocki told the court he was cruising around in a stolen machine that was running low on gas when he spotted the parked car of Kirchner.

"When I tried to get the girl out she scratched my face and pounded me and started to run and scream," he testified. "I tackled her and knocked her down and punched her. It was quite an even fight."

"She got up again and screamed and I beat her head against the rock. I never threatened to attack her. I only beat her up to quiet her, because I wanted to get away from the parking space as soon as possible."

Free Burial Urged For Hero Dead

Members of the National Funeral Directors Ass'n. in convention at Hotel Statler, were urged today by Daniel F. O'Brien of Cambridge to make no charges for services in burying the repatriated dead from World War II.

O'Brien's resolution to that effect was accepted by the resolutions committee, which will place it before the full convention at tomorrow's final session for action.

John N. Gronerichs, of New York, was elected president of the Association for the coming year, succeeding James C. Orr, of El Paso, Tex. Other officers chosen were Ronald C. Jones, Scranton, Pa., first vice-president; Edward A. Martins, Grand Junction, Colo., second vice-president; and Harry J. Gilligan, Cincinnati, O., secretary-treasurer.

Tonight Cong. John W. McCormack will speak at the convention banquet in the Hotel Statler ballroom.

Newsreels Barred From Royal Bridal

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Newsreel men, television and radio broadcasters will be barred from the royal wedding ceremony in Westminster Abbey Nov. 20, when Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the throne of Britain, becomes the bride of Lt. Philip Mountbatten.

After much consultation among officials in charge of arrangements, however, it was decided some news reporters and still photographers would be among the guests in the abbey, which can accommodate 1,000 persons.

The royal family, it was explained, repeatedly has expressed the wish that in line with Britain's austerity standards, neither money nor labor time be spent erecting spectators' stands in the streets. The King also has expressed the wish that the wedding be as little public as circumstances will permit.

He himself ruled against motion pictures of the actual ceremony, but both official and commercial motion pictures will be taken of the procession from the palace to the abbey.

Already there is extensive traffic in window accommodations. Lookout points in premises areing up to £25 ($100). In government offices, civil servants are drawing lots for vantage points.

6 Yard Workers Sue Commandant

Six ex-service men employed at the Charlestown Navy Yard today charged its commandant, its industrial relations officer and five shop masters "with maintaining certain favorites and non-veterans" while seeking to demote the six to inferior positions at great loss of pay and prestige.

The charge was made in a suit filed in federal court today, seeking an injunction to prevent the demotions. The six are Earling C. Wettre, Henry P. Uatromora, Henry M. Atkinson, Wilfred P. Champoux, Lawrence J. Melia and Silver D. Joy, all members of the Navy Yard War Veterans Ass'n.

Named in the petition are Capt. Wesley McLaren Hague, commandant; Capt. John B. Sneythe, industrial relations officer, and five shop masters.

DeBartolo Plans Trip to California

Michael DeBartolo, 23, of Dorchester, internationally famous amnesia soldier, fumed a bit today over red tape which holds him another 36 hours at Governors Island, N. Y., but had happy visions of a trip to California to forget the ordeal which once doomed him to a lifetime in Army prisons.

Officials at Governors Island said it would be Saturday or perhaps Sunday before Mike will be mustered out of the Army as an honorably discharged veteran. They explained his records must be collected and many adjustments must be made.

The Dorchester soldier who was sentenced to a life term on desertion charges in Italy and later won freedom following earlier commutation to 10 years, was buoyed by a visit from his mother, Mrs. Joseph DeBartolo, who fought unceasingly for her son's freedom for two years.

He leaped into her arms on her arrival at camp, sobbing:

"Mother, isn't it wonderful! After what has happened, this makes the day the happiest in my life."

His father, sister and other relatives also greeted Mike and told him not to worry. They said everyone is going along with Mike to California for a month.

To reporters, Mike talked for the first time about his wounds, which he claims led to amnesia and his two-year absence from the ranks during the last two years of the war.

"I've got two shrapnel wounds in my arms, so I guess I won't be going back into the ice business with my dad," he said.

Test Jet Plane On Mt. Washington

MT. WASHINGTON, N. H., Oct. 2 (AP)—A Navy jet fighter plane was being prepared today to undergo severe weather tests atop this 6,288-foot mountain. The plane, an FD-1 Phantom, was flown to Berlin a week ago, partially disassembled and trucked to the summit over a winding auto road.

The plane is being secured in a flat-topped "Butler" building, open at both ends, making a wind tunnel to test the plane in the icy hurricane gales that beat across the mountain top, to determine whether the jet engine under operating conditions or the plane's wings will ice up first.

Hunt 2 Boys, 1 Bicycle Pedaling to '47 Series

Reported to be bound for the World Series on one bicycle, two teen age Cambridge boys were sought in a wide-spread police search today. Robert W. Wright, 14, son of Mrs. Helen Wright of Hampshire pl., and his chum, Walter McNeill, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McNeill of Cambridge st., have been missing since early yesterday, their families told police.

And so has Robert's bicycle.

The youngsters left their homes as usual yesterday morning, apparently bound for school. Robert attends Boys' Vocational School, and Walter is a student at St. Mary's School.

Mrs. Wright said Robert has been saving his allowance for several weeks, but never had mentioned going away. She said he dressed yesterday in his Saturday play clothes, explaining the boys were to play volleyball at school.

From playmates of the missing boys, police learned the pair had discussed a trip to the World Series in New York and Brooklyn for more than a week, both confident they could make the long jaunt on Robert's bicycle.

Walter was described as five feet 4 inches tall and heavily set. He wore light blue trousers, a white shirt and a khaki army shirt over it, and brown shoes.

Robert was dressed in blue dungarees, a green sport shirt, a navy blue turtle-neck sweater and sneakers. He has brown hair, blue eyes, is of light complexion, stands five feet seven inches and weighs 118 pounds.

GOOD LUCK-BAD

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Oct. 2 (AP)—The auto Mrs. Lee Marksbury, Centralia, Mo., was driving turned over five times but she was uninjured.

Several minutes later, after Mrs. Marksbury crawled from the machine, she stood up, fainted and suffered a cut over one eye as she fell.

In an age that has made a fetish of publicity, nothing, in my opinion, quite equals the build up or, should I say, the pull down of H. B. K. (just alphabet soup to the uninformed, but Hem Below the Knee to you and me). In a period dedicated, nay consecrated, to Ballyhoo and the Printed Blur I feel as though I have seen just about everything that publicity could do from how it made "Bad Breath" a greater national threat than the atom bomb, and how it elected as America's Movie Queen of the year a dame whose sole qualifications seem to be a biological distortion. But all that has gone before is as nothing to the campaign that is now being waged to relegate to the ash heap every single item of apparel a woman owns. Yesterday's suits, dresses, corsets, slips, et al, are now anathema, thanks to the "new silhouette." Even milady's shoes must all be junked and new ones bought because "with the new and lower hemlines men look at your feet more," a crack, I think, that tops anything I have ever heard for sheer ingeniousness. It is a fabulous fight, really, but don't ever be confused about the outcome. Every thing that mother owns, including that gorgeous ensemble she bought last June for $183.57 (reduced from $634.21) is now suited for only one purpose—to mop your brow while waiting for the bill collectors to cart you to jail.

Yes, the way the women's wear people, in joyous cahoots with the advertising profession, promote their wares is a joy to behold. Compared to them we in the men's wear field are pre-Neanderthal in technique. Who, in this day and age, ever heard of a system that allows a man to buy an outfit and then wear it out-unintimidated by fashion's whims? In the words of a famous Harvard economist, "It ain't progress." And yet our record isn't wholly a bust. The quarter century I have spent in retail clothing has seen one fashion change at least. Whereas men used to wear jackets exposing the derriere in toto, the style now is to wear 'em longer and expose just half.

Warns U. S. of Red 'Pearl Harbor'

America must not permit another Pearl Harbor by according Russia the same treatment given Japan before the outbreak of the Pacific war.

This blunt warning came today from Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, who called for an end to shipments of potential war weapons to the Soviet and a roundup by the FBI of Russian agents at work within this country's borders.

She called upon State Sec. Marshall to take safety measures for the protection of the U. S. and the whole of America, and urged the confinement of Soviet officials here "to the area of their official business."

"In view of the fact Soviet Russia has decided on an unfriendly policy toward the U. S., it is time for this country to take certain positive steps for the purpose of security and the protection of America," she said.

SAVED BY U. S.

"Since the ending of lend-lease, of which Russia received billions of dollars of goods from the U. S. for domestic uses as well as billions of dollars of goods for war uses, without which Russia would have been defeated by Hitler at Moscow, Leningrad and Stalingrad and completely overrun by the German army, and for which Russia has never paid the U. S. and never will, Russia has pursued a constant anti-American policy.

"Recently Russia has refused all Americans who have sought visitors' visas the right to enter Russia, refused entry to one of America's most distinguished and eminent doctors, Dr. Elliott Joslin of Boston.

"It is now obvious Russia intends to dominate the whole of the continent of Europe, force the people of Europe to live under Communism and enslave the millions of Europeans to the dictation of the Kremlin in Moscow. This is the first step.

"The second step will be to force Communism on the rest of the world ending in an effort to gain complete domination and control.

"Since the beginning of the European war the U. S. very generously and in a spirit of help, has permitted thousands of Russian agents to enter the U. S. for any purpose whatsoever.

"They have had the run of our country. They have gone into our factories and studied our machines, factory methods and industrial procedures. They have studied our production processes.

"Russian agents have examined the very heart of America, photographed and made exact drawings of all of our vital enterprises.

"These agents are still in America. These Russian agents are still coming to America, and America is still permitting them to enter, giving them a free hand to do as they wish.

"The time has come to stop this activity. The U. S. must forbid the entry of Russians and deny them the privilege of doing as they please within our boundaries, unless American agents are given the same right in Russia, and it is perfectly obvious Russia will never give us this right.

"The security of the U. S. and the whole of America demands that safety measures be taken. Furthermore, it is my belief that all exports to Russia of vital American resources, such as iron ore, steel, oil, machine tools and products of all kinds which would prove beneficial to Russia in case of war, should be prohibited."

Methodists Call for Action To Avert 3d 'Catastrophe'

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 2 (AP)—In a final message to world Methodism, the ecumenical Methodist conference today called for action against war-mongering, racial discrimination, moral deterioration and "any governmental form which tramples on the freedom of the individual."

Speaking at the close of a nine-day gathering of representatives of 12,000,000 Methodists from both hemispheres, Dr. Edmund D. Soper of Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., said:

"We are compelled in this conference to face the problems of the state and the government. Little or nothing was said about the exact form which the state should take except that we cannot tolerate any governmental form which tramples on the freedom of the individual, reduces man to the level of a mere instrument of the state."

The message was written by Dr. Soper, religious history professor, and Dr. Harold Roberts, theology tutor of Richmond College, Surrey, Eng.

It also demanded concerted action to prevent another catastrophe "more terrible than the horrors of the two World Wars."

The conference emphasized the deterioration of home life and the spread of sexuality, alcoholism and gambling.

One of the most crucial issues before Methodism, Dr. Soper said, was "racism." He asked:

"Where can Negro and white worship... together except on special occasions like this?"

The message also pointed out what Dr. Soper said was the duty of the denomination in industrial disputes.

"Many a minister is in the difficult position during industrial conflicts of facing both classes—capital and labor—as he ascends the pulpit," the doctor continued. "He is usually not an expert in industrial relations and cannot take sides."

But, Soper warned, the minister "is under obligation, a divine imperative which he cannot escape, to demand that justice be done."

2 Long Term Felons Ask Clemency

Walter F. Coakley, 21, Somerville, serving 9 to 14 years for the attempted attack on a Somerville night club entertainer, and Joseph M. Morello, 22, Cotting st., West End, serving 7 to 10 years for his part in the $31,000 armed robbery of the Abbott Worsted Mills, Westford, today appealed to the Superior Court appellate division for reduction of their sentences.

Coakley, convicted last June of the attempted attack on Mrs. Dea Verdaro, 23, Summer st., Somerville, insisted he was innocent. At his trial his record revealed he had served more than three years of a five-year sentence imposed January, 1942, on conviction of three assaults with attempt to attack three women in one night.

Morello, at one time a $35-a-week restaurant worker, father of two children, was one of six men who pleaded guilty to the mills holdup and were given stiff sentences.

Both appeals were taken under advisement.

Mother Attended Girl's Beatification

Only one mother in the history of the Roman Catholic Church has ever lived to be present at the beatification of her daughter.

She is Mrs. Assunta Goretti, who was led into the sanctuary of the Pope by two other living daughters after her daughter, Maria, was so honored.

The story of Maria's martyrdom is told by Rev. Francis P. LeBuffe, S.J., moderator, Catholic Evidences Guild, in the American Weekly, the magazine section of next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

No-Park Trial Eases Traffic, Stirs Protest

Commuting automobiles rolled into Boston more smoothly today on the second day of the experimental ban on parking in right hand lanes of principal thoroughfares, but discord developed among traffic officials.

The 60-day test, if successful, may lead to a state law making permanent the rule against parking at the curb of inbound lanes from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and in outbound lanes from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Communities close to Boston are participating except Malden, which turned down the proposal because of protests of its street and water departments.

Trouble arose when Thomas F. Ryan, assistant highway commissioner of Brookline, complained that Back Bay police were not joining in the drive on its opening day.

"We co-operated," he said, "but we saw lots of parked cars from St. Mary's st. to Kenmore sq. on the Boston side and never a policeman tagging them."

"Brookline householders like to park their cars in front of their homes, but they played ball. They won't feel much like it, though, if Boston doesn't."

Boston police said there would be no new drive for them since the same parking rules have been in effect in the city for months.

The plan to accelerate movement of vehicles into the city at the two rush periods worked well on its tryout in Cambridge, Somerville, Brookline, Medford, Melrose, Everett and Revere. The Mass. Safety Council termed the experiment "a definite benefit" to traffic movement.

90 Seek Council Seats, 16 in School Fight

Chairman William A. Motley, Jr., of the board of election commissioners today announced that 90 candidates have been certified in the contests for city council seats and 16 were approved in the school committee race.

He said 28 candidates for the council and two school committee contenders were eliminated from the ballot because of insufficient valid signatures. Only Councilor Perrie Dyer Chase of the Back Bay will be unopposed for re-election.

Loyalty Oath For Legionnaires

A new oath to be taken by all American Legion members in Massachusetts, designed to smoke out any Communist members within the ranks, today went out to more than 400 Bay State posts.

The new oath requires members to answer whether they: "Subscribe to the principles of any group opposed to our form of government; and to swear: 'I am not a member and do not subscribe to the principles of any group opposed to our form of government.'"

Members who fail to subscribe to the oath will be dropped from membership. State Adjutant Coleman C. Curran announced. The drive results from measures adopted at the national convention in New York last month following expulsion of a member who admitted membership in the Communist Party and who appealed the expulsion to the N. Y. Supreme Court.

School Tries Out Mass Baby Sitting

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 2 (AP)—

The University of Oklahoma plans to test a mass baby sitting project as the student senate voted $60 to employ nurses to watch the babies of some 1000 student parents while the parents attend the Oklahoma-Texas A. and M. football game. Most of the fathers are veterans.

"If student parents are supposed to look after their kids, and the university is supposed to look after the students, why then the university ought to help look after the kids, too," said Ferril Rogers, a Senate member.

The Senate voted to try the plan Saturday, with Rogers supervising the experiment.

UN 'Cloak' For U. S. Plot, Bulgaria Says

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 2 (AP)—Bulgaria accused the United States today of deliberately exaggerating the Balkan disturbances to "supply a good excuse to transform Greece into an armed camp of the United States."

The attack was more before the 57-nation political committee of the United Nations Assembly less than 24 hours after two important developments affecting relations between the United States and Bulgaria.

These were the granting of full diplomatic recognition to the Communist-dominated Bulgarian government by the United States, and a simultaneously successful move led by the United States and Britain to bar Bulgaria from membership in the United Nations.

Bulgarian representative Dr. N. Mavorah, answering charges of "aggression" against Greece, assailed the United States for alleged plans to dominate the entire Mediterranean area and charged that the United Nations was being used as a cloak for such plans. He declared:

"We are the victims of a monstrous blackmail."

Held in Suspected Attack On Marlboro St. Woman

Too many romantically aggressive men are around, said Judge Elijah Adlow in municipal court today as he held

Charles Finley, 29, Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, ex-GI sheetmetal worker, in $1000 for the grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to attack Miss Theresa Leary, 41, Marlboro st., Back Bay, public relations counselor.

Through his counsel, Atty. Herbert J. Callahan, Finley, who had pleaded not guilty, refused the court's offer to reduce the charge to assault and battery provided the defendant would accept sentence.

The alleged assault took place in Miss Leary's room the night of Sept. 9, 24 hours after Finley had moved into the room next to hers.

PINNED TO RADIATOR

Miss Leary testified Finley brushed past her into her room at 10:30 p. m. while she was clad only in a dressing gown.

"He said he wanted to borrow a needle and some brown thread," she said, "and then he calmly examined my possessions, looked into my closet and commented on my good taste."

When she opened her door to show him out, she said, he pinned her against the radiator "and I mean literally pinned her."

"I fought back," she went on. "He pulled by housecoat completely off."

"Did you make any outcry?" asked Murphy.

"I couldn't, so I rattled the radiator and I called Dr. Evelyn Lyke, who owns the house."

TREATED FOR BURNS
 Her reluctance to discuss the matter kept her from reporting the incident until two days later, she said, after she had been treated by Dr. Lyke for bruises.

Finley denied her account of the incident and charged Miss Leary had "played up" to him.

"She made no outcry," he testified, "and met me halfway."

Commented Judge Adlow: "It's hard to tell where romance leaves off and attack begins."

Girl Vanishes

revealed that she had telephoned her sister at 2:30 p. m., as reported. Pickard said.

Lynn Inspectors Frank Broadbent and J. Henry Wall questioned fellow workers of the missing woman today and began a thorough search of the telephone company building.

Detectives said it was not more than a 10-minute walk from the telephone company office to the theater where she was to meet her mother.

Her mother told police that she waited until 6:15 for Ruth to arrive at the theater and then telephoned her other daughter, Mrs. Andrews, to find out if Ruth might have been detained at the office.

Ruth was described as 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 139 pounds. She has brown eyes, brown hair, a fair complexion and was wearing a pink sweater, purple suit, black suede shoes and black coat, hat and gloves. She wore her hair in a feather shoulder bob, parted in the middle.

Shoe Workers End Manchester, N. H., Strike

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 2 (INS)—Some 2400 employees of the International Shoe Co. returned to work today in four New Hampshire plants after a one-day strike.

They voted to defer acceptance or rejection of a company offer of three cents an hour wage increase for each new five-point rise in the Department of Labor price index up to a total of 12 cents.

GOOD-WILLER SAYS IT WITH DIAPERS

14 DETROIT, Oct. 2 (AP)—Jerry Ashley of Detroit thinks "we've got to start at the bottom in building international friendship."

So his diaper wash company offered yesterday to provide free service for seven survivors of Chinese octuplets as well as the Russian quins whose births were announced recently.

Ashley said he had sent cables to the American consulate at Shanghai and Joseph Stalin in Moscow asking for the addresses of the new arrivals. He then proposes to use China Clipper service to wrap international goodwill around the babies.

A FEW WEEKS AGO during one of the several blistering hot days, I had paused at one of our tables for a few minutes to enjoy a refreshing glass of iced tea, and at the same time to engage in conversation with a fine, scholarly, dignified old gentleman whose acquaintanceship I have cherished for many years.

Now this Boston gentleman was busily cleaning his plate after a hearty meal of our delicious corned beef hash. As, in boy-like manner, he smacked his lips over the last good mouthful, and in the most proper fashion neatly placed his knife and fork back on the plate, he raised his eyes and earnestly passed this remark . . . "Mr Curry, there was a time when corned beef hash was an object of jest and derision. Away from home no one dared to touch it. Now I marvel at the change. Thanks to Waldorf's high quality product corned beef hash has assumed new stature, and has risen high in the lexicon of public opinion."

Bless his Beacon Hill heart . . . in his best Boston-ese fashion he had paid us a high compliment indeed!

James J. Curry
President.

C. F. Adams

Adams, in the wholesale grocery business. After a time desirous of learning all ends of the business, he became a drummer, selling tobacco, preserves and syrups from Chicago to Norfolk.

During this period he married Loretta "C. F." as he was generally known, entered the employ of Towle and Fitzgerald, Boston brokers, as a customer's man. There he met the late John T. Connor, head of a chain of 150 stores, who suggested that Adams quit the brokerage business and buy him out.

SAFETY FAMOUS CHAIN

Adams obtained backing, bought out Connor and became president of the company. Realizing he was facing considerable competition, a short time later in 1925 he effected the consolidation of Connor's, Ginter's, O'Keefe's and Arthur Doris's into the First National Stores with himself at the head.

Back in 1918 "C. F." had become interested in amateur hockey, and was the second largest stockholder in building the new Boston Arena in 1926. He bought the Bruins' franchise in 1924 and lost $75,000 the first year, but then followed the purchase of the Western League and the meteoric rise of the Bruins.

In 1935 Adams with V. C. Bruce Wetmore and others built Suffolk Downs, in control of which he remained until 1953 when he sold to the Aldred Trust. Later after court proceedings the track was sold at auction to John C. Pappas and J. Arthur Warner.

Queen Mother Mary, 81, has sent in six floral chair seats with embroidery signed "Mary R." for Mary Regina. She asked that the proceeds go to charity.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's schi-erous acids and poisonous w-blood. They help most people live a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, poisonous spots on eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Frequent uric acid passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A passenger bus of the Southern Bus Line Co., Inc., whose former drivers are on strike, was fired on today a few miles north of Hat-

The shooting occurred in spite of a warning from Gov. Fielding men would be placed on the buses with orders to "shoot to kill" if the shootings continued.

The bus was due in Hattiesburg at 8:50 a. m., to inaugurate a re-

Church Leaders Join in Hub Rededication Week Program

Leaders of all faiths today signified their intention of participating in the gala patriotic procession on Sunday, Oct. 12, which will climax Boston's celebration of Rededication Week on the parade grounds of Boston Common.

Invitations have been extended to Archbishop Cushing, Dr. Norman B. Nash, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in Massachusetts, and Rabbi Herman H. Rubenowitz, president of the Rabbinical Society of Boston.

Boston citizens from all walks of life, many of them clad in their occupational garb—from baseball players to show girls—will take part in this unique and colorful windup of the Rededication Week ceremonies, the committee in charge announced.

20,000 TO PARADE

Chairman John Breen stated that he expected one of the largest patriotic processions ever held in the city, with more than 20,000 members of various organizations participating. Already acceptances have been received from more than 250 organizations, he said.

Headquarters for the Rededication Week program have been established in the Buddies' Club on Boston Common, a building presented to the city by the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser.

Temporary Mayor John B. Hines, committee honorary chairman, will serve as master of ceremonies at the Common exercises and will introduce a number of national, state and municipal leaders. The principal address of the parade ground exercises will be delivered by Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge.

Marchers in the patriotic procession will converge on the Common in four lines from starting points on Beacon Hill, Boylston st., outlying Beacon st., and downtown Boston.

FREEDOM TRAIN DUE

Arrival of the Freedom Train, with its invaluable historical documents, at the North Station on Oct. 11 is another outstanding feature of the week-long celebration. The train will be welcomed by Gov. Bradford and delegations of school children.

The train is to be open for public inspection at North Station from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., and then moved to South Station on Oct. 12, for inspection there.

Other highlight events on the Rededication Week calendar are the Boston Advertising Club luncheon in the Hotel Statler, Oct. 7; a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce on Oct. 8, and a Boston Chamber of Commerce gathering at the Copley Plaza Hotel the same day.

SPEAKERS LISTED

Cong. John W. McCormack will be principal speaker at the Advertising Club luncheon; Brig. Gen. Henry Parkman, Jr., and Judge Edward F. Hanify will address the Faneuil Hall meeting, while U. S. Atty. Gen. Tom Clark will deliver the feature address at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Gov. Bradford, Judge Francis J. W. Ford and City Councilor Isadore M. Y. Muchnick will address a rally of federal, state, city and county employees at the Parkman Bandstand on the Common on Thursday, Oct. 9.

On Friday, Oct. 10, Philip Murray, CIO president, will address the Industrial Relations Council of Metropolitan Boston at the Hotel Bradford.

A NEEDLESS CRISIS

THE OFFICIAL government announcement that a serious coal shortage may be expected this winter should arouse our New England officials, although it will probably do nothing of the kind.

For nearly three years these men have been repeatedly advised that their failure to encourage the production of cheap and abundant hydroelectric power to replace scarce and often nonexistent coal would eventually cause needless unemployment and widespread suffering throughout our six States.

But the advice fell on stone-deaf ears.

When bills calling for the development of scandalously neglected rivers were filed several months ago in the Maine and New Hampshire Legislatures, the Governors of both States showed an amazing passion for seclusion.

Power trust men appeared at the public hearings and vigorously opposed the proposed legislation.

A few courageous Senators and Representatives contended that waterpower is New England's most valuable natural resource and demanded that the people get its full benefits.

But most of the officials who had professed great love and concern for the people at election time were conspicuously absent. They sustained the power trust by their silence and inaction.

They were content to allow enough electric power to heat and light a half-million homes to be dumped into the Atlantic ocean.

They gambled with the health, welfare and prosperity of New England people; and now, if the predicted coal famine occurs, they cannot blame anyone save themselves if they are repudiated by the people and voted out of office.

TIMELY ACTION

MORE THAN four hundred American Legion posts in Massachusetts have launched a campaign to drive out members who are Communists or who support foreign ideologies opposed to the United States way of life.

All members are required to answer the question: "Do you subscribe to the principles of any group opposed to our form of government?" and to take the following oath:

"I am not a member and do not subscribe to the principles of any group opposed to our form of government."

The Legion's good example should inspire other civic and fraternal organizations to take similar action.

This would be an infinitely safer country if the oath were obligatory for the faculties of all schools and colleges.

It is wrong and harmful for any institution which enjoys million-dollar tax exemptions and other publicly granted favors and concessions to harbor professors and instructors with Red Fascist leanings.

TOO SEVERE?

JUDGE ELIJAH ADLOW, speaking at the annual conference of New England chiefs of police in Poland Spring, Me., suggested that law enforcement officials would increase their popularity and prestige if they exercised more discretion in making arrests.

We can only hope that the judge's remarks will not be misconstrued by highway patrolmen, too many of whom are already dangerously lax in the discharge of their official duties.

Last Labor Day these patrolmen were out in full force in an intensive drive on speeding, recklessness and drunken driving.

And, as everyone now knows, the roads were amazingly safe and the death toll remarkably low.

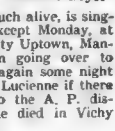

It is very unlikely that this would have happened if irresponsible drivers had any reason to suspect that patrolmen would look the other way when they were "hitting 70" or otherwise breaking the law.

Sweet are familiar songs,
though music dips
Her hollow shell in thought's forlornest wells:
Sweet is the sight of sunset-sailing ships,
Although they leave us on a lonely shore.
Sweet are the rosy memories of the lips
That first kissed ours
Albeit they kiss no more.

A SAN FRANCISCO says he has a clipping of an A. P. dispatch dated June 17, 1942 that states Lucienne Boyer, French music hall star, died at Vichy, France, the night before. "Since then," says he "you have mentioned her several times. Has she returned from the grave?" I am at loss to understand the dispatch mentioned. All I know is that Lucienne Boyer, very much alive, is singing nightly, except Monday, at the Cafe Society Uptown, Manhattan. I am going over to see the show again some night soon. I'll ask Lucienne if there is anything to the A. P. dispatch that she died in Vichy in 1942.

ASKING: Queries from clients: Q—"Kilkenny Defeats Cork Before 70,000 in Dublin To Capture Hurling Title." That's the headline on a brief sports dispatch. What is hurling? A—"It is Ireland's national game. Was invented by a sports genius named Fin McCool. Is played on a field 140 yards long, 80 feet wide with a rubber ball about 10 inches in circumference, weighing four pounds. Fifteen men on a team. General idea of game is to carry ball on stick in direction of opponents' goal and hurl in between or over the cross bar of goal posts. Q—What have your Horses & Women experts to say about the care and handling of a Cancer-born wife? A—Our H. & W. experts do not base their wife handling advice on astrology but on the experiences of a number of successful husbands. The stargazers say Cancer (June 21-July 22) women usually expect too much of a husband. They build him up in their dreams as a superhero and when he turns out to be just a human being it irritates them. Cancer women are restless souls. They always want to be moving. But never want to live too far from their mothers. Husbands of Cancer women usually suffer from mother-in-law trouble.

PASSING BY: Alexandra Danilova. Ballet dancer. If she were a film star, she would soon be nominated as the girl with the loveliest limbs in Hollywood. Marlene Dietrich wouldn't be in it. Nor Claudette Colbert. . . . Eddie Arcaro. Mighty mite of the saddle. Not much of a fellow to talk about himself. For the past 15 years sportscribes everywhere have been referring to him as "The Kentucky Italian" and saying the scene of his early triumphs was the Blue Grass State. Arcaro never corrected them. But just the other day Eddie became a little loquacious and unexpectedly stated: "I was born in Ohio, not Kentucky. I rode my first winner in Mexico. At Agua Caliente in 1931."

SIDELIGHTS: Brooklynite says she has a cat with one blue eye and one green eye. "Is it a rare animal?" she asks. I couldn't say. Am not much of an expert on cat's eyes. However, I remember a report of a cat winning a prize at show held at Coney Island, N. Y. This cat had one pink eye and one blue eye. . . . Now and then I use a cigar holder. But I don't enjoy smoking a cigar that way. Puffing through a holder makes all cigars taste very much alike. I just use a holder when with my girl friend. She says she doesn't like to see me chewing on a cigar.

MEN WHO WEAR GLASSES: "The discussion regarding the procedure followed by a man wearing glasses when he kisses a girl interested in," writes a young woman of Manhattan. "I had a boy friend who wore glasses so I guess I am eligible to join in this discussion. Before this bespectacled young man kissed me he would carefully remove his glasses and put them away in a case. Being a girl who likes her kisses to come as a surprise, this ruined the romance for me. For some reason or other, his removing his glasses so solemnly struck me as funny. And, alas, no man likes to have a girl start laughing just when he feels like being romantic."

Tor-a-lor-a-lor-a, baby don't you cry.
Tor-a-lor-a-lor-a, close those sleepy eyes.
Tor-a-lor-a-lor-a, mother's always nigh.
Tor-a-lor-a-lor-a, that's an ancient lullaby.
Father serves his country,
Upon the raging main.
Mother's at a night club,
And she's paralyzed again.
Baby's lone and lonely,
There's none to hear its cry.
Tor-a-lor-a-lor-a,
That's a modern lullaby.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The case of Rocky Graziano, the middleweight champion prizefighter, is another in which the reaction of elements of our journalism to revelations of sordidness has been a default of the trust reposed in a free press.

That is very high-sounding language, to be sure, and I hope that from here on we may be informal.

The Department of National Defense has disclosed that Graziano was sentenced to one year in Fort Leavenworth, the Army prison, and a dishonorable discharge in 1942, the year following Pearl Harbor, and served 10 months and was given the D. D.

The charge was absence without leave, but, as everyone knows, AWOL ordinarily is a mild offense and the fact that Graziano got a year and did 10 months suggests that he was a bad actor in the Army.

He was. He was a bad actor before the Army took him in the draft in January, 1942. He was a slum kid, like many of the best and the worst natives of the City of New York, and, in 1932, when he was only 12 years old, he made his first court appearance charged with delinquency.

He was put on probation but turned up twice more in the next two years on further charges and was sentenced twice to a protectory.

AT THE AGE OF 18 Graziano was charged with burglary. This was reduced to petty larceny. He and a couple of friends had robbed a school of a movie projector and some other stuff and hooked it or fenced it. He was sentenced to a "vocational institution," but another little job was in the works in the courts at the time so the sentence was suspended.

The other charge also was burglary. Rocky and his friends had broken into a night club called the Cafe Valentino after closing and swiped some wine and cigarettes.

For this and the other trick, Graziano, under his right name of Barbello, was sent to a reformatory for an indeterminate sentence.

The district attorney's office, then under Thomas E. Dewey, tried patiently with this kid. He was badder than the others in the neighborhood, but it was on the recommendation of J. L. McDonnell, the assistant D. A., that he got lenient treatment on the first burglary charge because he was just a boy, and a soft sentence for two rather serious misbehaviors.

IN NOVEMBER, 1939, he and three others were arrested by Detective Prospero Petrosino, charged with a stickup with a gun. The victim was sitting in an automobile and they stole the car.

The fellow said he couldn't be sure of his identification, however, and the boys walked out. That was close.

On Jan. 3, 1941, about a year before he went into the Army, Graziano was arraigned on a complaint of the Children's Society charged with a crime against a girl 15 years old. Corroboration is required in such cases and for lack of corroboration Rocky was dismissed.

GRAZIANO IS A dese, dese and dem guy and a fine figure of a low-brow for the fight racket of song and story.

If we had no boxing law and if we would only let Nature take her course and realize that prize fighting is low and rough the harm done might be negligible.

But after the other war we legalized and attempted to regulate and discipline the racket and adopted certain laws and rules.

Of course it is a rough sport, or racket, and incorrigible, but when under government you encourage and protect an activity, then government takes some responsibility.

Frank S. Hogan and Alfred Scotti, his assistant, were discharging their responsibility when they were caught red-handed, as you might say, and accused of making cheap political notoriety for themselves at the expense of the manly art of self-defense.

They caught Graziano having truck with a fixer who offered him $100,000 on two occasions to throw fights that he could win easily. And when he said he didn't know who the fellow was they just said he was a liar and turned him in to Eddie Egan, the chairman of the prize fight commission, who suspended him.

But the sport journalists, far from investigating corruption on their daily beat, abused Hogan and Scotti and depicted Graziano as an "underprivileged boy."

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2 (INS)—Janis Carter flies to Rome Friday to be the bright and shining star in "The Eternal Melody," which Gregor Rabinoitch is making for Columbia.

While this is a dashing young actress who was co-starred with Glenn Ford in "Framed," will furnish most of the glamor, it's Jan Klepura and Marta Eggerth who will give with the song.

Janis Carter

You see, the movie is actually based on "La Vie de Bohème" from which Puccini's opera "La Bohème" is taken. It's one of the most popular operas and has figured in many a movie.

With England almost prohibitive as the locale for movies, Rome is now becoming the favorite European location.

WHEN ROBERT YOUNG, the railroading biggie, was here, he told me that he was going to build Eagle-Lion into a big company and that they would add top flight producers.

Well, the first step in that direction is the signing of Walter Wanger by Robert Benjamin and Arthur Krim. The Wanger productions with the exception of "Joan," which goes to RKO, will be released through Eagle-Lion when it is backed by J. Arthur Rank. The first picture Walter will make on the lot is "Ballad and the Source," the novel by Rosamond Lehmann.

Last night it was said John Ford was approached by the Eagle-Lion people, and it is said that Hunt Stromberg had talked with Krim and Benjamin before they left for New York. The latter two deals, however, are not confirmed.

THE ANSWER to "Body and Soul," John Garfield's expose of prize fighting, is being made by Republic in a movie called "Ringside." The studio has just bought this novel by Martin Van Laas, which stresses the clean element of the fight game and the real sportsmanship of such fighters as Gene Tunney, Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey.

As for me, I never want to see prize fights in any form. I used to cover the championship bouts, but after seeing the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago, when the referee let the count go on and on and on to make a decision, I lost my taste for the cauliflower ear entertainment. John Garfield, by the way, writes he is going on personal appearance tour with "Body and Soul" in 15 cities.

STORIES LIKE THIS I love

Washington Scene

Copyright, 1947, King Features Synd., Inc.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—This fellow with the thin lips and shy smile who now holds direction over more armed men than any individual in the history of the world, stared at me across his big desk and suspicion deepened that I was looking at a man being groomed to go higher.

James V. Forrestal, our new Secretary of Defense, has never permitted a line of publicity to be released about any political aspirations. But the man is most definitely being cleared. Don't be surprised if Jim Forrestal is suddenly "drafted" next year as the Democratic party's candidate for vice-president—or even president, if the leaders decide they haven't enough chance with Truman.

The signs are not too obvious as yet, but they're there. More and more Forrestal is being held up as the "strong man" of the administration and Navy press agents are quietly going around whispering to editors and publishers that Forrestal is the "greatest civil servant this government has ever had."

It was no cenny-meenny-miney-moe business that resulted in Forrestal's being made the top military man, the only one of the new quartet to sit in the cabinet. Had Truman named anyone else the Democratic leaders would have had conniptions. Truman was aware he might be nurturing a rival but he couldn't say no.

THE 55-YEAR-OLD defense secretary was an investment banker, yes, but the Democratic leaders feel he has managed to throw off the ancient curse of being a "Wall Street man" through his government service. They feel, anyway, that being a success in business is no handicap today in a war-conscious nation that has become very leery of gloom visionaries.

He's about the best pest off the Democrats can get for Henry Wallace. Forrestal despises Wallace—and makes no secret credit for suggesting a "National Diet Week" whereby the entire nation goes on a seven-day diet to help out in the critical problem of getting enough food to starving Europe.

She also suggests the diet be made up by government experts and that newspapers help the good work along by printing it.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Dorothy Kingsley, Metro writer, welcomed a seven pound 11 ounce baby daughter yesterday in the San Francisco to Paris fashion hospital.

Joan Leslie is taking Esther Williams place in the Paris fashion show.

Bette Davis showing Esther had to bow out when she punctured her ear drum.

Stella Davis and William Grant Sherry will christen the daughter in the Mission Inn on Nov. 30, the date they were married there in 1945.

Robert Siodmak is headed back for Hollywood "Precious Bane," the picture he was to have made for J. Arthur Rank, has been called off because it's too expensive at this time.

Maureen O'Hara's mother arrived from Ireland the middle of October to visit her daughters. She hasn't been here since 1941.

John Conte, Marilyn Maxwell's ex, and Kathleen Lee, both in the east of an alleged romance in Boston, are a big rumor.

Iris Bynum, who gets in the column almost more than any other of the Hollywood glamor gals, is now concentrating on Orrin Lehman, son of the former New York governor, now in Hollywood.

Ruth Warrick, who goes on tour with "Daisy Kenyon," has been signed by 20th for one picture a year.

Dan Duryea is confined to his home with a skin allergy caused by adhesive on a fake beard he wore while testing for "Another Part of the Forest."

Maxie Rosenbloom, Max Baer and Ann Corio are going into a show together on Broadway this winter.

Bing Crosby's leading lady is yet to be decided. Bing is now looking at tests, and it's a toss-up between Rhonda Fleming and Gail Russell.

The whole "Johnny Belinda" company eating pumpkin pie. Ronald Reagan brought back a 36-inch pie from Eureka and sent it to Jane Wyman, who is on location. Ronnie returns to Washington Oct. 20 for the Congressional investigation. That's all today.

Shoulders Can Be Pretty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Beauty and Fashion Editor

THIS FALL AND WINTER not only the young

... but the not-so-young ... will be exposing shoulders in those new after-five fashion beauties. And both will look not daring ... but darling. An expanse of skin-you-love-to-touch shoulders can be a most exciting picture ... providing, of course, the shoulders are all that they should be.

The thought comes to me that many more women would bare their shoulders if the shoulders looked as though they could do right by them. But too often, they can't. They are discolored ... not so prettily shaped ... the skin texture doesn't all match the texture of the lovely face. So what's a woman to do but cover them up?

Well, the covered look is the approved look for daytime, but comes the dark, the spell of music, the playful electric lights and the covered up look takes a drop ... from the shoulders, of course! But there can be no off-the-shoulder frocks for you and you ... if the shoulders aren't satin smooth and soft-looking.

However, it is not a too trying situation ... not even for the most stubbornly unpretty shoulders. For a very famous beauty house has developed an unusual product that has the recipient of its cosmetic bounty this particular expense alone. It is a lotion ... a lotion that contains precious substances and ingredients which tend to coax the shoulders, arms and back into new beauty.

It is one thing to cover this expanse ... but so much lovelier to let them reveal naturally as nature. This new soft, flowing preparation ... containing hormone substances ... not only smooths the skin but actually gives it a cosmetic something that adds it in remaining youthful in appearance. As every woman sorrowfully knows ... time does march on and in doing so ... the skin loses some of the factors present in young skins which help make for suppleness and smoothness. And oddly enough ... neglected or old-looking skin seems to be more prevalent in the throat and shoulder areas than anywhere else.

For the name of this new estrogenic lotion for soft, beautiful, bare shoulders, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBERTY 4000, daily except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Addressing Letter

When you address a letter to a boy of say ten or eleven years of age, should you address him as "Master" or as "Mr."? Or should not omit the title before the name of such a young boy?

GAYE

You should always write a title with a name on an envelope. You may properly use "Master" before the name of a boy of that age, but you may just as properly use "Mr." and he will like the "Mr." better!

Keeps Clothes in Repair

by EILEEN CALLAHAN

It is faint praise indeed when the best that can be said about a woman is that she is well-meaning. With the best intentions in the world, but very little realism and fewer brains, many women flounder along invariably meeting their problems with the wrong solutions when with a little thought they could meet their difficulties squarely and realistically.

They are the women whose clothes look hatched together rather than co-ordinated. No wonder; they have met the problem of a split seam, a lost button or a ripped hem with a string of safety pins instead of with a needle and thread.

If safety pins were as efficient as a well-run seamstress, dressmakers would use them. But they're not and until something better is invented it still takes fine stitches to make a smoothly finished costume. The woman who values her appearance keeps her clothes in repair with careful, timely sewing.

Economical Meals Served Without Sacrificing Variety

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

CUTTING DOWN ON COST and giving variety at the same time, calls for ingenuity on the part of the meal planner. And yet it is within the realm of every homemaker to serve economical meals without sacrificing either variety or nutrition. We have many resources to call upon in this country — our commercially canned foods, abundant poultry and egg supplies, seafoods, fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals, and dairy products. And when one is in short supply, another can be substituted quite successfully. It's a matter of getting good combinations — choosing foods that complement each other nutritionally and tastefully.

The famous Good Housekeeping Institute, where food problems are ironed out daily by experts, has prepared a series of economy menus which are based on sound nutrition principles.

Replying to an Invitation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband and I have been separated for about two years and are now in the process of being divorced. I have been so disturbed by this unhappy situation that I have withdrawn lately from social activities, and so some of my friends are not aware of the separation or divorce proceedings. This morning I received an invitation to the wedding of the daughter of my former college roommate. The formal invitation to the ceremony and reception was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. I very much want to go to the wedding. How should I word my acceptance (if you think it correct for me to accept)? Must I explain about why I don't accept for my husband?"

Martha C.

Indeed it is correct for you to accept this invitation and to go to the wedding — and I hope you do go. Write the formal acceptance for yourself, omitting your husband's name.

Smart Set Buffet at Midnight

By BETTY ALDEN
"IF YOU PLAN your menu around what the young people like you'll have simple food and not waste any," the mother of a debutante told us today. We had asked her how mothers plan midnight buffet suppers for 500 or ushers' dinners for several hundred debut and college men in these days of food conservation and high prices.
 "Corned beef hash is popular with the boys and scrambled eggs a favorite of the girls," she said, "so these are the most practical dishes for midnight suppers, with lots of milk and soft drinks."
 Instead of expensive squab, steak or fillet mignon which used to be the main course at lavish dinner parties before debutante balls, the 1947 deb are having just as much fun and being just as well fed on breakfast chicken, with a clear soup, a couple of vegetables and ice cream for dessert."
 At one of the large parties this fall smart grill stoves were set up in the marquee before midnight. As the dancers' appetites increased they helped themselves from large pitchers of pancake batter and platters of hot dogs and had a lot of fun grilling their own flapjacks and frankfurts.
 FOR THE FIRST TIME since before the war the Sheraton Dinner Dances are to be revived this year with parties Oct. 21 and Feb. 27. Joyce Redman Wins Wilbur Throng in English Thriller

AS AUDIENCES at "Duet With Two Hands" leave the Wilbur these nights, you hear excited exclamations. "She's terrific!" "Isn't she adorable?" "What an actress!" . . . Joyce Redman, a tiny sprite from County Mayo, Ireland, who in this English thriller gives a performance that is nothing less than electrifying.

Having seen her in New York last season as Doll Tearsheet, the bawdy, bawdy innkeeper of Henry V, with London's famous Old Vic company, many first-nighters were mystified as to how she could look so plump in that play and so elfin in this one. And the reporter, having made a date to dine with her, wondered what the real Joyce Redman would be like.

"She is quite different from either of the women she has played in America, actually. She is shy, yet terribly alive and enthusiastic; completely without pose or vanity, but honestly aware of her acting talent . . . although she doesn't realize how great it is . . . and passionately in love with the theater."

Her eyes shone when we put the question to her about how she achieved the effect of a soft-fleshed, self-indulgent wench in the Shakespeare play.

"You know, I have had people I met in New York look at me suspiciously and say 'couldn't be Doll Tearsheet.' I thought I'd be about forty. That is a bit disconcerting, although as an actress I appreciated it."

"But I'm delighted if I looked fat, because I used very little padding. I felt fat and sort of loose, for the part. I think that you can, if you are a really good actress, look short or tall, fat or slim, if you feel it sincerely."

That only works, of course, if you aren't much overweight to begin with. "I'm five feet, with my shoes on," she said, "I weigh seven stone and a half." Since there are 14 pounds to a stone, that would mean that she weighs 105.

She looks less than 20, but is actually a few years more. She left her native Ireland to study at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London, and never graduated, because she got an understudy's role in "Lady Precious Stream" and fortunately the principals got taken with food poisoning. (She had a thing to do with the food.) Anyhow, she was kept in the part, and went on from there.

Dorothy MacFarland in Oklahoma Comedy Lead

Dorothy MacFarland, and not Sherry O'Neill, will play the leading comedy role of Ado Annie, the girl who "can't say no" in "Oklahoma!" when the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical opens its five-week engagement at the Colonial Theater Monday night. Thus Miss MacFarland returns to the part she played with this company for more than two years in the last local engagement of the nation's favorite musical.

Surgery Devises New Arm Joint

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—A method of creating a new joint in an arm amputated above the elbow was described today to the United States Chapter of the International College of Surgeons.

The operation, outlined by Dr. Leon Gillis, senior surgeon at Queen Mary's Hospital, Roehampton, England, calls for severing but not removing a short section of the bone of the upper arm to form a short distal stump. As much flesh and muscle is preserved as possible.

The bone ends are burnt with electro-cautery to ensure non-union of the parts in the arm. The same muscles that normally control the natural forearm are made to operate the stump.

Fans 'Ride' Shotton

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 — Burt Shotton's ears were either on fire today or were made of asbestos.

The Brooklyn manager is being second guessed in press, subway, hotels, firehouses and police stations. You should hear the Brooklyn cops get after him for not playing Furillo in center field in place of Reiser, especially after the two startling catches, one near second base off Berra, the other in deep, deep center off DiMaggio. Furillo made on successive plays in the opening game. Brooklyn never has won a World Series (1916, 1920, 1941) and they don't like to see this one thrown away by poor strategy.

Shotton was bitterly assailed after the opener for keeping Berra on the mound too long when a Brooklyn fireman, sitting nearby, pleaded: "Get him outta there. He's aimin', not throwin'." Seems everybody in the park knew it but Shotton. When Shotton did get Berra out, he used right-handed Hank Behrmann with the left-handed pinch-hitting Bobby Brown having a two balls, no strike count on him, and with Tommy Henrich coming up later (Henrich single two runs home in that frame). The fireman figured, and so did everybody else, that Shotton should have used southpaw Hatten or Lombardi in that spot; that it's all right to play percentage over a 154-game season but it is peremptory to gamble in a best 4-in-7 series.

Brooklyn lost that first game 5-3 and lost the second 10-3, getting worse on the double. Getting worse on the double because Reiser gave a tumbling act while Furillo, rated the best defensive center fielder in the league sat on the bench. Because he bats right-handed he's used only against southpaws, and relief man Joe Page is the only southpaw the Dodgers will see in this series.

Dodgers try to pin the blame on Bucky Harris for refusing them permission to practice in Yankee Stadium Monday. They claim Reiser would have acquainted himself with the sun and shadows. Reply the Yanks: "Sun or shadow didn't trouble Terry Moore in the '42 World Series."

What of this sun or shadow business? "The sun is bad in left field, not center field," says Joe DiMaggio, who ought to know. "But there is a haze at home plate that is annoying."

The evidence is against Reiser and against Shotton for keeping him in center field. If Di Maggio and Furillo can do it, why can't Reiser?

FINNEGAN.

Dodger Rooters Seek Shadows; Graziano Case

By BILL CORUM

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (INS)—What Brooklyn plainly needs is a good five-cent fare World Series victory. . . . One more day like yesterday and our best advice to Borough President John Cashmore will be to rope off the Brooklyn Bridge. Not to keep people from crossing it. To keep 'em from jumping off it. . . . The forgotten man of the Series has been Branch Rickey. So far as we have seen and heard, no mention has been made of him and no picture taken. Maybe he hasn't been showing up. . . . Somebody said of Yogi Berra before the Series started that he still wasn't a finished backstop. He will be if he doesn't stop standing around under fly balls with his noggin exposed. . . . One true Brooklynite, leaving the Stadium after yesterday's debacle, was overheard to remark: "Poor Petey Reiser! He was playing them there fly balls like a man in a 'MAZE'."

Shotton Ready for Quick Get-Away

BURT SHOTTON has been second-guessed so much in these first two games that he must be saying to himself: "What a lucky guy that Durocher is, sitting up there in a nice box seat."

Burton Edwin probably would appreciate some sort of soft job, such as being president of U.N., or a spy in the Kremlin.

Still, one must admit that "Barney" is no sucker. He stays dressed at all times for a quick get-away.

Speaking of quick get-aways, we bumped into Ford Frick in an empty taxi (Thanks, Bugs Baer) that we were trying to pick up in the vicinity of the Stadium after the game. You will recognize Mr. Frick as president of the National League, although he regrets that you will.

The gentleman was sitting in the bottom of the cab huddled under an old Army blanket. When we opened the cab door, he stuck his head from under the blanket. The first thing we noticed was the wild and desperate look in his eyes. Indeed, he didn't seem to recognize us. He was like a man in a "MAZE."

"Is this Bronxville?" he croaked. He lives in Bronxville.

"Naw," replied the cabbie. "This is still the Bronx."

"Shhh, not so loud!" warned Frick, putting his finger to his lips. Whereupon, he disappeared under the blanket again.

We courteously permitted him to drive us home and left him with the meter still ticking. It probably is just as well that he arrived in Bronxville under cover of darkness. Even the president of the N. L. has neighbors.

Today, however, is another day. It almost always works out that way, doesn't it? Mayhap the "finest flowers of Brooklyn" will blossom again on the friendly sod of home.

If not, just make a note that they are running the Futurity at Belmont Park on Saturday. A fellow always likes to have some place to go.

Rockey's Case

With the Series being played, there hasn't been time or opportunity for a sports commentator to discuss the recent revelation about Rocky Graziano's Army record and dishonorable discharge.

I say revelations because to me they were that. I knew that Rocky had a poor service record and been returned to civilian life under a cloud of some kind. Also that he was an "old grad" from a reformatory or two.

I also know of his background that he had been a tough kid in the streets, brought up by a grandmother, from whom he had taken his name because it had a tougher ring to it than his own. Or really more likely, by accident, because Rocky doesn't think much. He hasn't anything with which to do much thinking.

He is a typical product of the streets of our big cities, and the cities are ours. I am not a truant officer or an M. P. and it not for me to pass on the rules and punishments of the Army, or the laws and actions of civil authorities.

Seeing him fight—and he can fight all right with his fists—passing a word with him now and then, seeing him leading his baby along the streets of Chicago and with his numerous family, of all ages, it was my guess that boxing gave Rocky the only chance he ever had.

Or, better, the only chance until the war and the Army swept him up. For his defections there, there can be no excuse. Nor would I ever attempt to excuse or minimize law breaking and serious hoodlumism, even for a fellow who hadn't got too much chance. They may be underprivileged and under-educated. They're not that dumb.

But when Graziano was suspended in New York on a nonsense charge without justifiable and publicly announced reason, I battled for him. Just as I did for Durocher. And will again for anybody who seems to me to be getting a tossing around for personal or political expediency reasons. You can't fairly convict a man of anything just by saying, "Well, he had it coming."

That may be your opinion. It can't be justice.

Belongs to Public

If Boxing Commissioner Eagan knew these facts about Graziano and had made them public, he'd have had a strong ally here. So would Chandler, if he had offered evidence that justified Durocher's suspension and had given him a public hearing. This he did not do. Furthermore, any man in the position of Eagan and Chandler who has facts and withholds them is doing a bad job. The facts belong to the public that supports all sports.

Taylor Seen as Today's 'Darkhorse'

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2—If the Yankees beat the Dodgers four straight, that will make them the equal of the Braves who did the same thing at season's close . . . two in Brooklyn, two in Boston. Lou Perini

Allie Reynolds: "I didn't have my stuff. I hadn't pitched for eight days, and it was too cold for comfort. But I got two base hits, and that made me feel better. . . . Rocky Harris (that one came a little easier, didn't it?)"

There was little whoopee in the Yanks' clubhouse after the second game victory. Most of the boys apparently feeling sorry for the customers who didn't see a better show.

"Mr. Harris," said a young reporter, "Mr. Shotton won't announce his third game pitcher. Do you have an idea?"

"I told you Lombardi for the second game," the Yanks' personable pilot replied, and I'll tell you Halton for the third game." . . . Evidently, Harris figures Shotton is afraid to try Branca again.

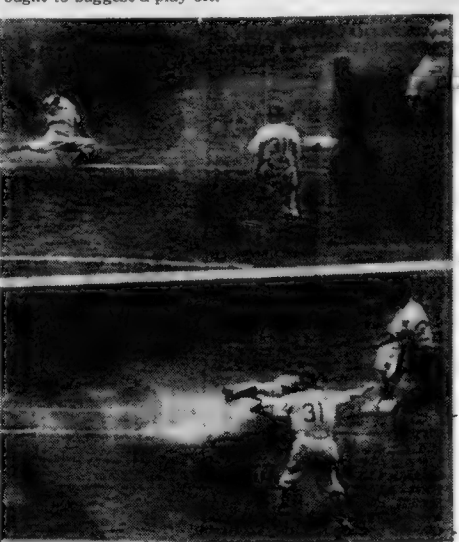

Taylor could be today's darkhorse. He's supposed to have a sore arm, but righthanders seem to be more effective against the Yanks than lefties, though the Red Sox figured differently last year when Keller was playing. . . . Lindell swings a 35-ounce bat, and Ralph Kiner does likewise. . . . Reporter Kiner, 51 homerun hitter in the N. L., is a Californian like Lindell and Lombardi.

"How did California ever produce such a shrimp as Lombardi?" quipped Kiner. "Gives the state a bad name," Lindell replied. "That's why I got mad at him." Lindell tripled in the second, doubled in the fourth, after which Gregg relieved the 153-pound Lombardi.

Tommy Henrich: "Of the 16 homers I hit this year, I hit only four in Yankee Stadium (short right field) and only one where I hit that off Lombardi." Henrich's titanic wallop traveled high above the 367-foot mark in right center. "Funny thing," added the ex-Coast Guardsman whose mother and father are here to see him play. "I hit three homers in Fenway Park (long right field) this year. What does it prove?" . . . The argument rages, that Williams would hit 60 in Yankee Stadium, DiMaggio 60 in Fenway Park. . . . When Ruth set his homer mark of 60, he hit as many on the road as he did in Yankee Stadium. . . . Both Lindell and DiMaggio wear long undies under their uniforms—in this weather. . . . "Stand out there in the wind, and you'll know why," they smile.

"There's the man who brought the Yankees beat the Dodgers four straight, that will make them the equal of the Braves who did the same thing at season's close . . . two in Brooklyn, two in Boston. Lou Perini

Reynolds to the Yankees," said MacPhail in buoyant mood, pointing to Joe DiMaggio. "I was going to pick Embree until I talked to Joe." The story that goes back to the last World Series. Joe was in Boston watching Dom play. MacPhail was there. He spotted Joe. "I can have either Embree or Reynolds in the Gordon deal," said MacPhail. "Which do you think will help us most?" DiMaggio, without hesitancy, said "Reynolds." And MacPhail took the Creek Indian who won 13 games this year, 13 of them in Yankee Stadium. "He's more rugged than Embree," said DiMaggio, "and he always had good stuff against us even when we beat him." . . . Embree had another poor season with the Indians, failing to reach the 500 mark, so DiMaggio should be listed as a scout as well as a player.

Lefty Grove, Red Faber and Ted Lyons were grouped in the hotel lobby. Did you ever see such pitching? They were asking each other, Brooklyn pitching, that is. . . . Reynolds: "I should have got the ball Stanky hit thail led to the Dodgers' first run. I lost balance and couldn't get my glove down in time. It wasn't hard hit. If it had been, Strinewiss never could have reached it. Made a marvelous stop, didn't he?"

Jackie Robinson looked bad on two plays—one when Reynolds bunt went through his hands (called a hit). Again when he held Strinewiss' hopper instead of throwing it to second. The Yanks gave Robinson a good going over, as the Dodgers have been giving third base Coach Drensen, their old teammate. . . . Robinson was quoted after the first game: "Mighty Yanks. They didn't show me much power." . . . Yanks made only four hits in that first game but poured it on to the tune of 13 in the second, and kept reminding Robinson of it. . . . Dodgers are supposed to be rough riders and probably will be tough in their own park, but the Yanks are no illies. We've seen Henrich tangle with Bagby (and ask Greenberg how tough Bagby is?), Johnson with Hal Wagner, and Lindell with Kurowski in the '43 series. They'll take no sass from the Dodgers.

Berra finally caught Reese stealing, and he was given a derisive hand, but nothing comparable to that Reiser received when he caught Rizzuto's fly in the first and he caught that like a safety man under a punt. FINNEGAN.

Freetown Angler Wins Buzzards Bay Derby

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Harry Franklin, of Freetown, is wearing a smile as wide as Buzzards Bay, for his 39-pound, eight ounce striped bass taken on an eelskin, Aug. 18, won the tidy sum of $1000 for him in the Canal Sportsman's Club Derby, which terminated at midnight Tuesday. His prize catch, thus, was worth about $25 per pound—a nice return for his $2 entry fee!

The second award of $300 will go to Robert Gosselin, Franklin, who hooked a bass that weighed 35 pounds, eight ounces. The specimen was caught with a squid Aug. 16.

In third place, one winner of $200, is Howard Briggs, of Taunton, with a 35-pounder, the only entry to be taken from a boat during the entire contest. Mr. Briggs really made what racing fans would term a "stretch drive," capturing this strip only a few hours before the final deadline.

Cash prizes, plus the scores of other awards, will be presented at an official banquet, scheduled for Oct. 8, at Buzzards Bay. At this time, a complete list of winners in all classes will be announced.

And now that the Derby has ended, the fishing—as was expected—is speeding up, stimulated, perhaps, by the advent of cool, sunny days. At any rate, waters of Massachusetts Bay, at the Boston end of the Cape Cod canal, are swarming with striper, averaging from 10 to 15 pounds. Meyer Boss Of Pirates

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Bill Meyer, who piloted Kansas City to the American Ass'n pennant this year, was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates today, succeeding the resigned Billy Herman.

At the same time General Manager Roy Hamey of the Pirates announced that Hank Greenberg, erstwhile home run slugger of the club, had been given his unconditional release at the player's request.

Hamey, who was general manager of the Kansas City club when Meyer managed there in 1938 through 1941, and that the contract Meyer signed was for two years and at the highest salary ever given a Pirate boss.

Collins, McGuire to Box for Callahan A. C.

Tom Collins and Mickey McGuire have signed to fight a 10-round in the Callahan A. C. all-star boxing show at the Boston Arena Monday night, Oct. 6.

Collins and McGuire, both 18 years old, will provide Boston with one of its most natural fights since the Sharkey-Mohr encounters. Both are undefeated in Boston rings. McGuire has won 12 in a row at the Boston Garden.

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 2—Burt Shotton, despite protestations of cab drivers and other ardent Brooklyn fans, used the same Dodger lineup in today's third World Series game that dropped the first two in Yankee Stadium.

Yanks Manager Bucky Harris, however, pulled a surprise in naming Sherman Lollar as his catcher in place of Yogi Berra, who caught the first two games. The surprise wasn't so much that Berra was benched; he didn't hit or throw well in the Yankee Stadium. Big surprise was that Lollar got the call over Ralph Houk, who has been with the

REISER IN HOSPITAL

EBBETS FIELD, Oct. 2—It was announced that Pete Reiser was taken to the Swedish Hospital in Brooklyn to have his left leg X-rayed as a result of an injury sustained in the first inning on an attempted steal of second.

World Series Sidelight

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—They say Hank Greenberg has played his last game for the Pittsburgh Pirates. A teammate of Hank, who wishes to remain unidentified, disclosed that Hank had requested his release.

"He still wants to play in the majors," the player said, "but with a New York club. He thinks he has another good year of baseball left in him. Hank was bothered by a bad elbow this year. He intends to have it operated upon this winter, only if he is assured that he will be able to play with a club of his own choosing."

Al Simmons, former great outfielder of the Philadelphia Athletics and now a coach of the team, thinks that Pete Reiser, who had a bad day at Yankee Stadium yesterday, is being criticized too severely for misplaying several drives out in the center field sector.

"Don't be too critical of Reiser's play. That triple deck at the Stadium, with the smoke rolling out, makes you lose the ball as it comes down out of the bright sun into the haze and shadows," he said. "It is especially tough for fellows playing there the first time. It took me a long time to master the technique of judging fly balls there. You have to be used to it."

The signing of McCarthy to manage the Boston Sox, and the possibility of Billy Meyer taking over the reins of the Pittsburgh Pirates, puts two former Yankee chancellors in the spotlight. Other former members of the Yankees or their chains managing the majors today include Johnny Neun with the Cincinnati Reds, Ben Chapman with the Philadelphia Phils and Murdy Ruel with the St. Louis Browns.

Yanks all season.

Lollar joined the Yanks late in the season from Newark. He led the International League in batting in '45, was tried and found wanting by the Cleveland Indians in '46.

Lollar bats right-handed, Berra left-handed, so that is one reason for the change since Shotton was starting Southpaw Joe Hatten on the mound. Hatten won 17 games during the season but dealt out only one first division club as the Yankee started to remind him as soon as he took batting practice. The Yanks are talented bench jockeys. Jackie Robinson will attest to that.

Shotton's fans were hoping Shotton would use Carl Furillo in center field and shift Reiser to left today, but evidently Shotton felt Reiser would have no trouble in his own park. He had it in Yankee Stadium, however, what with the sun and the hazy back-

There was no sun at game time, however, and the background was one with which Reiser is well acquainted.

Although there were hundreds of vacant pews 15 minutes before game time, it was announced that a select gathering of 34,000 would attend. Practically all are Brooklyn regulars, so there promised to be plenty of volume to the cheering today. All were imploring the Dodgers to snap out of it and bring victory home.

Yanks announced he was making a change in his batting order, sending Sherman Lollar, a recruit from Newark, to do the catching in place of Larry Berra. Berra failed to hit southpaw Lombardi yesterday and was guilty of several fielding lapses.

Lollar, a right-handed batter, is a 23-year-old six-footer from Fayetteville, Ark., getting a surprising chance to play in the big series. He was with the Newark club of the International League up to Sept. 1, but was taking the audience to the Stadium in time to be eligible for the series.

A former Cleveland farmhand who burned up the International League with his home runs and runs batted in totals in 1945, Lollar was with the Indians part of the 1946 season but was sent back to Baltimore. He came to the Yanks during the winter.

Several Yankee players who played under Bill Meyer in the New York minor league organization, were delighted to hear the news that their old skipper had been given the Pittsburgh managing job.

Shotton Relies on Wednesday's Clowns

EBBETS FIELD, Oct. 2—Shotton started the same lineup that was humbled by the Yanks yesterday, 10-3, in the Yankee Stadium, quieting reports that he might send Carl Furillo to centerfield

BABY FOR TEDDY?

The Boston Red Sox training camp this year may require a nursery. It was reported today that Ted Williams, American League batting champion, would become a father about Jan. 1, and that his diminutive wife, blue-eyed former Doris Soule, had made arrangements to enter a local hospital about that date.

Infielder Eddie Pellagrini recently became father of twins and pitcher Mickey Harris also is an expectant papa.

However, Shotton has kept Furillo out of the lineup all year when righthanders are pitching for the enemy, using Gene Hermanski in left. Furillo, a brilliant fielder, has one of the best throwing arms in the National League.

With the right-handed Newsom going for the Yanks, Shotton said, "I have heard that some stories have been written about my making a lineup change. I haven't read them, but there is nothing to it. I definitely do not plan any changes."

Manager Bucky Harris of the Yanks announced he was making a change in his batting order, sending Sherman Lollar, a recruit from Newark, to do the catching in place of Larry Berra. Berra failed to hit southpaw Lombardi yesterday and was guilty of several fielding lapses.

Several Yankee players who played under Bill Meyer in the New York minor league organization, were delighted to hear the news that their old skipper had been given the Pittsburgh managing job.

Both clubs found the range of the left field stands in batting practice. Johnny Lindell, one of the big hitters of the Series so far, barked two in the seats and so did several Dodgers.
